The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Burger.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Burger.

Concerning claim 3, Burger discloses the claimed device with the exception of the particularly claimed type of rubber. However, the examiner takes official notice that rubbers such as those claimed are commonly known. Such a rubber would obviously have been suitable for use as Burger's rubber.

Regarding claims 4-6, Burger does not disclose the exact thickness of his layers. However, absent a showing of unexpected results the particularly claimed thicknesses would have been obvious to the ordinarily skilled artisan depending on the strength and weight desired in the shaft.

Claims 7-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Conroy in view of Cabales et al. '932 (Cabales).

Art Unit: 3711

Conroy discloses the claimed device with the exception of the intermediate viscoelastic layer. However as disclosed by Cabales, Col. 7, first full paragraph it is known in the art to use such a construction. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have used such a layer between Conroy's composite layers for the reasons espoused by Cabales.

Vaughan et al., Yu, Reed, Gartland, and Horwood et al. have been cited for interest because they disclose similar shafts.
